At the GLBT Historical Society, 22,000 linear feet of historical materials on the San Francisco Bay Area’s queer community line 72 shelves. Notably, materials from the API queer women’s community comprise only 2 out of 709 collections in its holdings. As the first generation of openly out API queer women and transgender activists approach their seventies, their history from the 1960s to the 1980s may literally be forgotten. Dragon Fruit proposes an aggressive campaign to preserve their history through the collection of 100 hours oral histories and the public presentation of its key themes through a traveling museum exhibit.

Contact: Dr. Amy Sueyoshi, amysueyoshi@yahoo.com

Amy Sueyoshi is Associate Dean of the College of Ethnic Studies at San Francisco State University. She is a historian by training specializing in Asian American Studies and Queer Studies. She is the author of Queer Compulsions: Race, Nation, and Sexuality in the Intimate Life of Yone Noguchi.